EDITORIAL

Running a commercial photography studio is a passion and very much a lifestyle choice here at Close House Farm, constantly challenging but also extremely rewarding. By offering a creative approach alongside effective marketing solutions we continually strive to provide our client base with great photography. We don't believe great photography is a luxury in business, it's often the first thing a new client notices about you. With this in mind we have recently made the transition to shooting with the latest equipment and software supplied by Hasselblad. The H system from Hasselblad delivers superior craftsmanship and image quality whether in the studio or on location and with sensors twice the size of full frame 35mm cameras the results are distinctly superior, providing better resolution and clarity. Allied to this the ability to use flash in all lighting conditions (through use of central lens shutter) means we can capture images at very high speed in the studio under controlled lighting giving outstanding results. Our cover shot is a great example!

Behind the scenes...

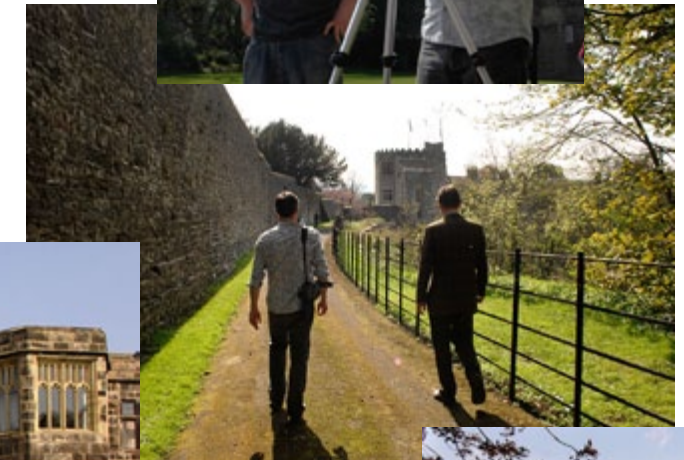

The Shoot: On location at Skipton Castle for Britannia Kilts, manufacturers of kilts and accessories.

The brief: To provide a range of images reflecting the quality of Britannia Kilts products with our model Darren, incorporating the stunning back drop within the grounds of Skipton Castle.

Thanks to Sebastian at Skipton Castle providing a room, we were able to download the images to the laptop for the client to approve as we progressed throughout the day - it also provided Darren a little privacy for changing!
